Tuskegee Kellogg Conference Center
Tuskegee University, AL

About the Conference

In the wake of 2001 comes the call to communities to develop animal disaster plans.

The purpose of this two-day conference is to focus on the importance of preparedness, awareness and response to natural and man-made disasters. Assisting the animal victims of disasters is not a matter of choosing animal needs over human needs. The bonds between people and the animals they care for are strong; when we help animals caught in a disaster, we help the people who care about them.

Hear experienced animal welfare, public health officials and emergency planners discuss:

- ★ Why some Alabama communities are prime targets for bio-terrorism.
- ★ Public health threats associated with natural disasters like flooding.
- ★ Whether Anthrax, West Nile Virus, Foot and Mouth, and "Mad Cow" diseases are real health concerns in Alabama.
- ★ Why is it important to have a Community Plan.
- ★ Why Incident Command Training is critical to disaster management.
- ★ Caring for livestock before, during, and after disasters.
- ★ How you can start an Animal Response Team.

- ★ How to talk to the media and who should do the talking when disaster strikes.
- ★ How to develop and maintain an active volunteer program.
- ★ How to safely evacuate and shelter pets before, during, and after disasters.
- ★ Where to get funding for animal emergencies.
- ★ How to care for wildlife and exotic animals during and after a disaster.

Who Should Attend

Animal welfare professionals such as veterinarians, animal control officers, humane societies, and volunteer rescue groups.

First Responders such as city and county emergency personnel, law enforcement, and government officials who are responsible for the safety and well-being of their communities.
