

You suffer through tests. But they shouldn't have to.

Many colleges and universities have adopted policies ensuring that animals in their laboratories aren't subjected to the worst levels of pain and distress. But, in spite of repeated urging, Illinois State University has yet to make this modest commitment to animal welfare. Please urge Illinois State University President Al Bowman to adopt a policy guaranteeing that animals in campus research laboratories will not be forced to endure severe suffering.

Write to President Al Bowman, Office of the President, Illinois State University, 421 Hovey Hall, Campus Box 1000, Normal, IL 61790-1000; call 309-438-5677; or e-mail abowman@ilstu.edu.
