

You suffer through tests. They shouldn't have to.

Many colleges and universities have adopted policies preventing animals in their laboratories from being subjected to the worst levels of pain and distress. But, in spite of repeated urging, Wright State University has yet to make this modest commitment to animal welfare. Please urge WSU president David Hopkins to adopt a policy ensuring that animals in campus research laboratories will not be forced to endure severe suffering.

Write to David R. Hopkins, Office of the President, Wright State University, University Hall 260A, 3640 Colonel Glenn Hwy., Dayton, OH 45435; call 937-775-2312; or e-mail david.hopkins@wright.edu.
