Thursday, December 6, 2007 11 AM- 2 PM

Suggested donation $15.00 /$10.00 if registered before November 25

Lieutenant Sherry Schlueter and Jake Oster outline the tools needed for individuals to make a difference in the lives of animals. National and local policy making will be addressed as well as other effective tactics for positive change.

Lieutenant Schlueter, Section Supervisor of the Special Victims and Family Crimes Section of the Broward County Sheriff's Office, has over thirty-five years of investigative and law enforcement experience. She has helped author successful local and state legislation, including the original Florida felony (aggravated) animal cruelty statute, which became law in 1989. She founded the first animal cruelty unit within a law enforcement agency exclusively committed to conducting investigations of crimes against animals. Sherry conducts training programs for law enforcement and civilian investigators, locally, nationally on a variety of topics. Lt Schlueter writes, lectures and teaches in the hope others will recognize the cyclic intergenerational nature of violent crimes and intervene before tragedy occurs. She also guest lectures at colleges and universities discussing these issues, as well as philosophy and ethics relating to animals, the environment, and to all of society's most vulnerable members.

Jake Oster, Grassroots Coordinator in Government Affairs for the Humane Society of the United States, has managed grassroots fundraising teams for the Democratic National Committee in Vermont and developed and supervised a non-partisan youth voter outreach campaign office for the New Voters Project in northern Nevada, prior to joining HSUS. Mr. Oster plans the nationwide grassroots fundraising program titled "Party Animals" teaches Lobby 101 Workshops around the country and coordinates a network of over 100,000 animal activists to push for animal protection legislation at the state and the federal level. Mr. Oster has organized constituent support for legislation to ban horse slaughter, prevent snare trapping and outlaw cockfighting. Most recently he worked in Massachusetts to stop greyhound racing as part of the ProDog campaign.

Morning and afternoon refreshment breaks, beverages, and vegan lunch are provided. Caring Fields Animal Sanctuary is located near Palm City, Florida, just 10 minutes off of I-95 or the FL.TPK.
