POLLY THE PUPPY MILL PUP

The story of a puppy mill pup is told in the boxes below. Number them in the correct order so that the story makes sense. To help you, two of the cards are numbered. Check your work by reading the whole story. If it makes sense, cut out the boxes and glue them onto a piece of paper.

<input type="checkbox"/>	Polly was sold a second time. Her new owner took her to a veterinarian. The vet gave Polly some medicine. It was very expensive.	<input type="checkbox"/>	After a while, the truck stopped. Then Polly was taken out of the crate. She was put in a pet store window. She was so sick, all she did was sleep.	<input type="checkbox"/>	The man took Polly back to the pet store. He wanted his money back. "This dog is sick," he said. The store owner took Polly back.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Finally, a woman came and took Polly out of the cage. She put her in a wooden crate. Polly never saw her mother or brothers or sisters again.	<input type="checkbox"/>	Before long, Polly got sick. Maybe it was from being cold all the time. Or maybe it was because the cage was dirty. No one ever cleaned it.	1	Polly was a puppy. She had been born in a small cage. The cage was outside and had no roof. Polly, her mother, and her brothers and sisters were often cold and hungry.
6	A man came to the pet store and bought Polly. He gave Polly to his little boy. The boy said, "This dog is no fun. All she does is sleep."	<input type="checkbox"/>	It took a long time, but the medicine finally made Polly well. And her new owner was very nice! Polly was lucky. Her story had a happy ending!	<input type="checkbox"/>	Alone in the crate, Polly felt sick and lonely. She did not know that her crate was in a big truck. She was being driven to another state to be sold.
