Teaching kindness to animals and respect for natural habitats while helping to instill good reading habits in children

KIND TIME

MANY PEOPLE HAVE fond childhood memories of feeding ducks, geese and swans at a local park or pond. In this issue, we examine the problems caused by feeding waterfowl food lacking the proper nutrients the birds need for good health. In addition to creating empathy and responsible behavior toward waterfowl, it can be a springboard for discussion of proper nutrition in humans as well.

A GREAT WAY TO EAT healthier is to go meatless one day a week. It's an effective way for your family to eat a healthy diet, go green and help animals. To learn more about participating in Meatless Monday and sign up to receive a weekly Meatless Monday recipe, visit humanesociety.org.

TIE ONE TOGETHER. Even if you don't have a cat of your own, you can still create the cat bed in this issue with your child. They're easy and fun to do. Make one or more and donate them to a local animal shelter or rescue.

BOOK NOOK

Winner of several awards, Going Home: The Mystery of Animal Migration

by Marianne Berkes, illustrated by Jennifer DiRubbio, is the perfect supplement to discussions about changing seasons and animal migration. A former teacher, Berkes combines poetry and informative prose in this "creative non-fiction" book, while DiRubbio's colorful illustrations bring the mystery of migration to life, highlighting a number of fascinating critters who travel long distances to locate food, raise young and seek optimum temperatures. More information is included at the back of the book and activities are available to download at dawnpub.com.

Our mystery critter is a mallard duck. With webbed feet and broad, boat-shaped bodies, mallards propel themselves easily through the water, but their body shape is also responsible for the way they waddle on land. 🦆 Male mallards are called drakes; females are called hens. Drakes have bright-colored plumage—a green head, white neckband, brown breast and black tail. Females are dull in comparison, with shades of brown and tan. Females' coloring, however, allows them to blend in with their surroundings, keeping them safe from predators when nesting. 🦆 Mallards tip forward in the water, tail feathers in the air, and use their webbed feet to steady themselves while searching for food underwater. This is called “dabbling” or “upending.”
