

Teaching kindness to animals and respect for natural habitats while helping to instill good reading habits in children

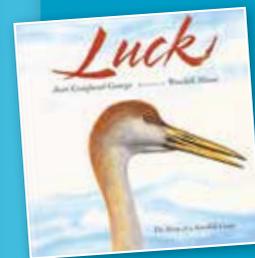

KIND TIME

WHO'S FLAPPING BY? As a fun family activity, watch for migrating birds visiting your neighborhood or park and report your observations on ebird.org, a real-time, online database of information on the number and location of birds in North America. The program is sponsored by the Cornell Lab of Ornithology and National Audubon Society.

HAVE A FALL SCAVENGER HUNT. How many seasonal changes can you find in the ways the wildlife and plants in your yard, neighborhood or park look or act? Write changes in a calendar on the days you notice them. Compare your lists with friends and family. Consider keeping the calendar for a year to see how closely the changes match what happens next year.

CONGRATULATIONS TO ASHLEY AULT AND LORI RAXENBERG, The HSUS Humane Teacher of the Year winners! Ault is a middle school social studies and English teacher in Hong Kong who guides her students in researching global issues such as shark finning, the ivory trade, animal testing and puppy mills. A pre-K teacher, Raxenberg leads a Baltimore group called Teachers for Tails that brings dogs into classrooms for humane lessons and raises funds for shelter pets.

BOOK NOOK

With its detailed paintings and prose, Luck by Jean Craighead George makes a wonderful addition to discussions of migration and wildlife appreciation. While observing sandhill cranes as they are about to depart on their yearly migration, a young birdwatcher in Texas spots one crane with a plastic six-pack holder around his neck. After freeing him, she waves goodbye to the bird she names Luck. The story unfolds as Luck makes an amazing northward journey all the way to his birthplace in Siberia, where he finds his mate. Together, they return to Texas.

Our mystery critter is the guinea pig. Guinea pigs are not related to pigs, but are members of a family of rodents called caviés. Wild caviés live in family groups in the grasslands and mountains of South America where they feed on grass, fruits and vegetables. 🐹 Guinea pigs' teeth continue to grow throughout their lives, creating a constant need to gnaw on hard surfaces to keep teeth from growing too long. They use their protruding eyebrows and whiskers, as well as their keen sense of smell, to find their way around. 🐹 Guinea pigs mark their territory and objects with scent glands and use a variety of sounds, including whistles and squeals, to communicate. Given a proper diet, regular grooming and plenty of attention, guinea pigs make wonderful pets who can live for up to five years.
