

Oppose Senate Bill 1236, a bill to weaken Michigan's Large Carnivore Act

BEAR CUB INCIDENTS

July 21, 2010/Cherokee, North Carolina: A 9-year-old girl was bitten by a 6-month-old bear cub at Chief Saunooke Bear Park. The child sustained scratches on her palm and the back of her hand and tooth marks at her wrist bone. This was the second documented bite by a bear at the park within the span of a week.¹

June 8, 2010/Broken Arrow, Oklahoma: A volunteer was bitten by a bear cub at Safari's, Inc., while transporting the bear in a golf cart.²

July 2005/Newberry, Michigan: Dean Oswald of Oswald's Bear Ranch was bitten six times, hard enough to draw blood, by a recently acquired bear cub.³

2004/Queensbury, New York: A bear cub being exhibited at a AAA office by the Ashville Game Farm and Exotic Zoo bit a person in the face.⁴

June 11, 2000/Natural Bridge, Virginia: A visitor to Natural Bridge Zoo was bitten and/or scratched by one of a group of three Asiatic bear cubs.⁵

Contact Jill Fritz, Michigan state director, for more information:
517-515-3839,
jfritz@humanesociety.org

Senate Bill 1236 would significantly weaken Michigan's Large Carnivore Act, which currently prohibits private possession and direct contact with large carnivores including bears and big cats. The bill will allow the public to handle and come into contact with bear cubs up to 9 months of age.

The practice of handling and using bear cubs for photo opportunities with the public seriously compromises animal welfare and threatens public safety. It is extremely stressful for bear cubs to be prematurely removed from the nurturing care of their mothers—a common practice to facilitate public handling. During photo and play sessions with the public, the cubs may also be exposed to abusive and excessive handling. Young cubs are capable of inflicting painful injuries and by 9 months of age a healthy black bear cub can weigh more than 65 pounds.

SB 1236 will result in an increase in the state's captive bear population and unwanted and potentially discarded adult bears. There is no legitimate justification for amending this long standing law that for over a decade has protected Michigan's bears from being bred for use in this practice.

SB 1236 will allow Michigan's bear exhibitors, which have a history of serious welfare and/or safety issues as summarized below, to endanger the public by allowing direct contact with dangerous wild animals:

Oswald's Bear Ranch in Newberry

In 2010, Dean Oswald's Bear Ranch was cited by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for using physical abuse to discipline a bear cub. A handler hit the bear cub twice while the animal was being used for photo opportunities with the public.⁶ Oswald had previously told a reporter who was handling a bear cub, "If he does something to you that you don't want done, slap him one."⁷ Oswald was apparently informed by officials in June 2012 that the dangerous practice of allowing the public to handle bear cubs violated state law.⁸

100 Aker Wood in Mayville

During a 2011 pre-license inspection by the USDA, 100 Aker Wood was cited for not having a way to lock out the bears so employees could safely clean the enclosure and inspect the animals. Weeks after the other bears emerged from hibernation, employees discovered a dead bear who had not emerged from hibernation. The inspector wrote, "Had employees had been able to access the enclosure earlier it is possible that the bear may have been provided with treatment."⁹

Dakin's Dream in Ewen

In 2011, the USDA issued an official warning against Dakin's Dream after a member of the public was attacked and injured by a bear. The person entered the bear enclosure to provide water for the animals and was not aware that at least one of the bears was still in the pen. The bear was killed by a state police officer.^{10,11}

Summer Wind Farm in Brown City

In 2012, Summer Wind Farm accepted a settlement agreement with the USDA for chronic, serious Animal Welfare Act violations. The facility was fined $500, had its license suspended for three months, and agreed not to acquire more animals for two years. Among the many violations were citations for a black bear enclosure that was in disrepair with wire panels that were beginning to bend and sag, excessive excreta in the black bear enclosure, and filthy, unsanitary drinking water receptacles.¹²

Wilderness Trail Zoo in Birch Run

A number of disappointed travelers have posted troubling comments at an online travel review site after visiting Wilderness Trail Zoo:

- “The poor animals at this facility have some very small and dirty pens. The poor bear and tigers especially have very little room.”¹³
- “We saw a bear that appeared half-dead -- it was very thin, appeared to have skin problems and was not moving. Pacing and lethargic animals were also very common.”¹⁴
- “[M]any of the enclosures seemed too confining for the animals ...”¹⁵
- “[T]he habitats for a good many of them are just substandard if not criminal. A lot of the cages have concrete floors and just chain link fence ... the pacing bear is still pacing.”¹⁶
- “The bear was pacing the cage and I felt that it was all it had to do.”¹⁷
- “Most of the exhibits in this small zoo are too small and completely unlike the natural habitats of the animals within them. We found ourselves just feeling sorry for the animals!”¹⁸

¹ Lee Zion, “Girl bitten at bear park,” Smoky Mountain Times, September 2, 2010.

² U.S. Department of Agriculture, Complaint, Safari’s, Inc., Docket No. AWA 12-0340, April 6, 2012.

³ Garret Mathews, “Tender Moment with Cuddly Cub Almost Unbearable,” Evansville Courier & Press, July 20, 2005.

⁴ Charles Fiegl, “Game farm cited for violations,” Post-Star, September 14, 2006.

⁵ U.S. Department of Agriculture, Inspection Report, License #52-C-0035, June 16, 2000.

⁶ U.S. Department of Agriculture, Inspection Report, License #34-C-0123, November 9, 2010.

⁷ Garret Mathews, “Tender moment with cuddly cub almost unbearable,” Evansville Courier & Press, July 20, 2005.

⁸ meeta4, “You can no longer take pictures with the bear cubs!,” TripAdvisor, Oswald’s Bear Ranch, July 9, 2012.

⁹ U.S. Department of Agriculture, Inspection Report, Customer #323804, Prelicense #1, September 8, 2011.

¹⁰ U.S. Department of Agriculture, Official Warning, Violation of Federal Regulations, Case #MI-11090, September 19, 2011.

¹¹ U.S. Department of Agriculture, Inspection Report, License #34-C-0297, July 27, 2011.

¹² U.S. Department of Agriculture, Consent Decision and Order, Docket #11-0223, March 8, 2012.

¹³ Amanda S, “Dirty,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, September 13, 2012.

¹⁴ HomeSweetHome, “Would never go back,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, July 26, 2012.

¹⁵ MichiganMrs, “Seemed too Confining,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, July 20, 2012.

¹⁶ jwax67, “The poor animals!!!!!!,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, June 17, 2012.

¹⁷ cricketnest, “Very Disappointing Zoo,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, May 28, 2012.

¹⁸ Migrammi, “Disappointing,” TripAdvisor, Wilderness Trails Zoo, September 28, 2011.

