COMMON CORE-ALIGNED ACTIVITIES

SL.3-4.1.d Students explain their ideas and understanding in light of the discussion. In the course of your discussion of puppy mills, a student may express regret that his or her family purchased a pet from a pet store. Whether or not that turned out to be a positive experience for the student's family—and for the pet—point out that what's most important is that we give our pets the love and life-long care that they deserve. Ask: How would someone choosing a pet in the future avoid the problem?

W.3-4.4 Produce clear and coherent writing in which the development and organization are appropriate to task, purpose and audience. Ask students to write a recipe for their favorite meat-free meal. They should include an ingredient list and provide step-by-step procedures to make the meal. Combine students' recipes to create a Meatless Monday classroom cookbook.

W.3.4.10 Write routinely for a range of discipline specific tasks, purposes and audiences. Use the following story starter to give students' practice in creative writing: They called themselves Animal Friends. The group of fourth-graders worked on projects to help animals. They had no idea that one day they would make headline news around the world.

BOOK NOOK

Young readers who love animals, adventure and suspense will find all three in Mutt's Promise by Julie Salamon. The story follows two puppies, Luna and Chief, whose mother, Mutt, was a stray taken in by a farmer. Luna and Chief begin life as carefree farm dogs, nurtured and trained by Gilbert, the young son of migrant workers on the farm. But when Gilbert's family must move on, the pups are unwittingly sold to a con man who imprisons them in a terrible puppy mill. Desperate to escape and return to their mother and Gilbert, the puppies find help from unlikely sources. The storyline takes many twists before its satisfying conclusion.

ANSWER KEY

Our mystery critter is a reindeer. Reindeer are well-suited for life in the cold arctic regions of Europe, Asia and North America. Their thick coats are made up of two layers. The one closest to the body consists of fine, soft, warm hair that's covered with a layer of hollow hairs that prevent heat from escaping and help reindeer stay afloat as they swim. 🦌 Both male and female reindeer have antlers. The antlers fall off and regrow each year. The new antlers are covered with soft fur called velvet. When the velvet dries up, reindeer rub it off against rocks or trees. 🦌 Reindeer have large, broad hooves that act like snowshoes to keep the animal from sinking when walking in snow. Reindeer's wide hooves also help propel the animals through water when they swim. 🦌 Thousands of reindeer may gather together for migration, traveling thousands of miles annually. Traveling in herds protects individuals from predators. Herbivores, reindeer eat grasses, leaves and lichens.
