

You suffer through tests. But they shouldn't have to.

Many colleges and universities have adopted policies ensuring that animals in their laboratories aren't subjected to the worst levels of pain and distress. But, in spite of repeated urging, Virginia Commonwealth University has yet to make this modest commitment to animal welfare. Please urge Virginia Commonwealth University to adopt a policy guaranteeing that animals in campus research laboratories will not be forced to endure severe suffering.

Write to President Michael Rao, Office of the President, Virginia Commonwealth University, P.O. Box 842512, Richmond, VA 23284-2512; call 804-828-1200; or e-mail president@vcu.edu.

For more information and other ways you can help, visit humanesociety.org/campuspolicy.

Celebrating Animals | Confronting Cruelty

